

This is a practical guide of Facebook Netiquette you can use to customize your Facebook Netiquette. As you read it, check off what you agree, note where and how you want to differ, then create your Facebook Netiquette by writing or typing out all the new guidelines to help you remember them. Put it somewhere easily accessible and/or visible to you for easy reference as you Facebook.

- Overall Tone Avoid negativity, especially with feelings and anything about other people
- Language No swearing, even if positively and abbreviated like LMFAO (or not excessively if you do)
- Self-control Learn to say NO to invitations (ex. Friends, Applications, Groups, certain events not good to publicize)
- Poking Do as little as possible, preferably not at all, not the least because poking is so “old school”
- Profile Privacy Set your profile to Only Friends privacy, giving nobody limited access as they should not be your Friend
- Friends Only have Friends you’ve met in person, and purge your list a few times a year as friendships fade
- “Monitors” Have people in front of whom you need to behave among your Facebook friends as “designated monitors”
- Contact Information Do not list personal contact information (ex. address, phone #, birth year, specific job locations like store)
- Status Don’t update your status more than a few times a day, avoiding statuses directed at one or few people
- Wall Defend your Wall by deleting inappropriate comments or counter with reply if you don’t want to delete
- Self-photos Keep tagged photos of yourself under 200, untag the less flattering and inappropriate ones
- Tagging Minimize tagging to let people tag themselves in photos, and don’t tag anyone in unflattering ways
- Notes Use Notes to share something genuine, avoiding personal attacks, “self-surveys” and diatribes
- Comments Be selective where you comments, expecting it to be public and what you comment for proper manners
- Post Privacy Control privacy setting each time you post something, sharing Only with Friends most of the time
- Notifications Minimize Notifications sent, turning off for Applications when adding unless their news are worth sharing
- Applications Minimize Applications, especially inappropriate ones, games that waste time, or ones with few users
- Groups & Fan Pages Check details of Groups and Fan Pages before you join, especially for authenticity (ex. authorized pages)
- Media/Legal Privacy Don’t start, join or invite others to groups or pages with news or names withheld by media or law, until after release
- Damage Control Go through your profile and make adjustments to make your profile suit your Netiquette rules, bit by bit
- Profile Impression Occasionally, ask someone for an honest impression they get from your profile and fix it till you’re happy
- Redemption If you do “inappropriate” things on Facebook, come back and delete it later to minimize visibility & damage
- Purging to Update Purge things a few times a year (ex. bad or outdated photos, Friends, Groups, Fan Pages, Notes, comments)
- Self-control Don't get caught up in other people's inappropriate behaviour, stick to your Netiquette and update it as needed
- Overall Approach Treat your Facebook profile & activity like an informal resumé or media image of yourself, cause it is!
